SUBJECT: "PHOTOPLAY" ARTICLE CONCERNING
MARILYN MONROE'S DEATH

ALL INFORMATION CONTAINED
HEREIN IS UNCLASSIFIED
EXCEPT WHERE SHOWN

Walter Winchell's column in the July 8, 1963, issue of the "New York Mirror" contained the statement, "Photoplay's current article on the man who 'killed' Marilyn practically names him."

In accordance with your request, there follows a brief review of the information concerning Marilyn Monroe in the August, 1963, issue of "Photoplay" magazine. On page 10, a column by Winchell begins which states that Marilyn Monroe's death "and the married man responsible for it" was still getting considerable space in the foreign press. Winchell says the author of the articles, which are syndicated in papers on the Continent, claims he personally interviewed many people in Hollywood and New York who were aware of Miss Monroe's problems and claimed his sensational story was "big news." The "big news," according to Winchell, was the name of the "married man" involved. Winchell says "many of us" on the papers and in the magazines have hinted at the name, and the foreign correspondent has jumped to conclusions. Winchell says there is no proof that the married man was the villain, and many of Miss Monroe's friends now believe the overdose of sleeping pills was an accident. Winchell claims much of the foreign correspondent's story was recognized by him as having appeared in "Photoplay" and in the Hearst newspapers for which Winchell writes.

Article in Photoplay - Aug. 1963

The article concerning Miss Monroe begins on page 52 under the caption, "One Year Later Marilyn Monroe's Killer Still At Large!" A review of this article reveals Winchell's claim that it practically names the man who "killed" Marilyn is nothing more than a ~~cheap~~ plug for a cheap magazine. Actually, the article comes nowhere near identifying anyone. The only "clues" to the identity of the alleged married man who had an affair with Marilyn and "caused" her suicide when he rejected her could apply to any number of prominent individuals.

These "clues" are: that the man is happily married and has children; that you can see him in a crowd and reach out and touch him; that he is a great man, famous, known the world over; that he can be seen on television and in movie theaters; that people look up to him and consider his wife and children lucky; that he is mentioned almost daily in newspapers and magazines; and that he is considered a "truly honorable man."

M. A. Jones to DeLoach memo
RE: "PHOTOPLAY" ARTICLE CONCERNING MARILYN MONROE'S DEATH

The article alleges the affair between this man and Miss Monroe began during the "worst time of her life and the best time of his." The alleged man was celebrating his good fortune in reaching a height in his career "he never before dreamed" would be possible. The remainder of the article allegedly outlines the end of the romance and Miss Monroe's final efforts to renew the relationship. The article states that she telephoned the man on Sunday night, August 5, 1962, and when he said he would not leave his wife and could not see Miss Monroe "any more" she swallowed a "handful" of sleeping pills. The article claims she later called the man again, implying that she told him of having taken the pills, only to have him hang up on her and states that the last sound she heard was the "buzzing of the receiver in her hand." after the man broke the telephone connection.

The article states that Miss Monroe's housekeeper has "vanished" and that her publicity agent, Pat Newcombe, is now working in Washington, D. C. It says her second husband, Joe DiMaggio, is the only one who remains faithful and that the man who killed Miss Monroe is still at large and can never be arrested. But, the article asserts, "Wherever he goes, whatever he touches, whomever he sees; he thinks of Marilyn. His guilt never leaves him, his fear has become his friend."

When the romance began nobody—neither Marilyn and the man—could have guessed at the ending. For it was a kind of love. It was the worst time of her life and the worst time of his, and so each of them needed someone to share that with. That was their love, their need, really. trouble with the law over Cohen. She was applying for a role in "The Untouchables," ironically. She brought along one of her art-painted by herself. Quite a talent.

I have a letter from one of her teenage daughters about her mother's release from prison. In it she reminds that her mother once was chosen as the girl who most looked like Marilyn Monroe. It was a national contest held by 20th Century-Fox. Liz and Marilyn were born the same year, too.

The daughter says her mother will shortly have a book published. It is titled "Debt of Honor." In it the author says: "I know what I did was wrong, but what else could I have done? Can you hurt a man who helped you when you needed it most? Can you then turn your back on him? When you see him with his back to the wall? I was forced to choose the lesser of two evils. There was no way to win."

At the prison gates when Liz Henny comes out she will be greeted by her daughter, Brenda, and husband and their babies—born while youngish Grandma was paying her Debt of Honor.

Just about ten years ago Delbert Mann and Paddy Chayefsky received, respectively, $9,000 and $13,000 for the direction and screenplay of "Marty." It made a fortune for its landlords and others. Today Delbert and Paddy each receive $150,000 per film. Plus hefty percentage.

Sophie Loren will portray a 60-year-old woman in "Yesterday, Today and Tomorrow." Whadda Waste!

Movie people and others who have recently returned from The Old Country brought back this enlightening tidbit: That Princess Soraya "couldn't" get along with her ex-husband, the Shah. It was when she announced plans for a film debut on the anniversary of their divorce. It was in March, 1958, that Soraya was exiled from Iran. The deal to make a movie with producer de Laurentis was announced Rome, March 15, 1963.

Her friends also spread the "news" if Soraya is convinced she was divorced because she couldn't bear children—because the Shah fell out of love with her. Doctors, they added, assured Soraya that a minor operation would enable her to come a mother.

world at that time that he had to have a celebration of his good fortune. His career had reached a height he never before dreamed it would, and there were obviously better, much better things in store for him. And what better celebration than to have the world's most desirable sex symbol in love with him?

With Marilyn, it was not good fortune but unhappiness that drew her to him. She was getting older, she was afraid she was losing her beauty, she was afraid she'd lose out on her career. Her last pictures had not made the money expected of a Monroe movie—and if she couldn't make money for the producers, who would hire her. And hadn't 20th just fired her?

Most of all, she had never found the love she'd been looking for, the love that was going to make her forget all her past unhappiness, the love that would make her world a beautiful place.

So she went on looking. And not finding, she became more and more desperate. And with her desperation came the endless pills, the drinking, and a dream she'd had before—the dream of ending it all in dying.

And then there was the man.

She needed him. She needed his confidence and his vitality. Because if this man was so confident of himself and of his future, and since he'd chosen her, didn't that mean he believed in her, too? And if he believed in her, then she couldn't possibly be as bad as she thought she was.

Maybe he will marry me!

Besides, to her, there was always the faint possibility that he would marry her, and they could live happily ever after.

But it was all a dream, and somewhere deep inside her she knew that.

He explained to her that they'd never marry. He loved his wife, he told her, though he loved her, too. And there was his career, he told her, any scandal would ruin it—and he'd never allow that to happen. This was what he'd dedicated his life to. No, he'd never allow that to happen.

And so they spent time together, as much time as they could manage, in quiet, out of the way places, at her home, in friends' apartments, once or twice meeting in the same public place and not acknowledging each other.

You must understand that he is an honorable man. Never before had he been anything but devoted to his wife and family. But he had a need for Marilyn and he allowed himself his indulgence. It was to be his fatal flaw.

And Marilyn, at that time, was too weak to deny her need for him. And so they went on—reaching closer and closer to tragedy—until the man's conscience began to bother him. Some people knew about their romance, could his wife find out? What would she do—would she leave him?

And if it became public knowledge, would happen to his work? Would he be smirched by scandal just when his dream was close to the brink of success? He'd better see Marilyn first, better try to stop seeing her altogether. And the more he tried to stop her, the more desperate Marilyn became. There were the phone calls, the 11 pills again.

He didn't believe her, all she did was make him almost hate her.

Finally, on a Sunday night Aug 1962, Marilyn tried again.

She spoke to him on the phone.

"Don't leave me," she pleaded.

"It's over," he answered. "I'll leave my wife. I can't see you any more."

He hung up on her and she to lose herself in sleep. Beside her bed was a bottle of fifty sleep capsules. There was her friend, the thing that gave her peace.

She gulped down a handful.

The phone rang. It was a close friend of hers, a friend who knew all about romance.

"He won't take me back," she said. "He said he'll never come back."

The friend told her, "I'll come and talk to you."

But Marilyn didn't want anyone her the way she looked. Her eyes swollen and red. She'd let her blot grow out until the dark roots showed. Her face clearly showed the signs of pills and pills.

"No," she said. "I've taken a pill. I'll just go to sleep."

But she couldn't sleep—and her was the bottle of pills. If at a soundtrack her voice was on the same $2.14.

Movie people and others in show business recently back from The Old Country brought back this enlightening tidbit: That Princess Soraya "erased" the man with her ex-husband, the Shah of Iran, when she announced plans for a film debut on the anniversary of their divorce. It was in March, 1958, that Soraya was called from Iran. The deal to make a movie with producer de Laurentis was announced in Rome, March 15, 1963.

Her friends also spread the "news" that Soraya is convinced she was divorced not because she couldn't bear children—but because the Shah fell out of love with her. Doctors, they added, assured Soraya that a minor operation would enable her to become a mother.

Long Deep Sigh Dept.: We note that Maureen O'Hara's beautiful eighteen-year-old daughter Bronwyn appears with Maureen in Warner's epic "Spencer's Mountain." O, dear. It seems like only a few Yesterdays Ago that Charles Laughton presented the eighteen-year-old Maureen in "Jamaica Inn."

Some Hollywood folks are still upset over Hedda Hopper's book which "tells all." One actress complained: "Imagine writing our memoirs instead of her own!"

And, if it became public knowledge, what would happen to his work? Would he be beamrashed by scandal just when his life's dream was close to the brink of coming true? He'd better see Marilyn soon. He'd better try to stop seeing her altogether.

And the more he tried to stop seeing her, the more desperate Marilyn became. There were the phone calls, the threats, the pills again.

He didn't believe her, all she did was make him almost hate her.

Finally, on a Sunday night August 5, 1962, Marilyn tried again.

sleep, she would feel better. She'd dream about her career, her fame. But she had no career. Her studio had fired her. Well, she could dream that somebody loved her. She could forget about her father who never wanted her, her mother who escaped to mental institutions. And she could forget this man who had left her, too. If she could only sleep. And next to her was the bottle of pills.

The bottle. It was empty! There were none left.

She had to get help! She called him.

Maybe she's faking . . .

First, he thought: If this gets out I'm through. I can't get involved in something like this. Then, she's faking. She's threatened me before. She'd never really do it.

He told her again he couldn't get involved—that he was a married man. He hung up.

It all took less than a minute.

The last thing Marilyn heard was the buzzing of the receiver in her hand.

Coroner Theodore J. Curphey, in his official report, noted: "Miss Monroe had often expressed the wish to give up, withdraw, and even to die. On more than one occasion in the past, when disappointed and depressed, she had made suicide attempts by using sedative drugs. On these occasions she had called for help and had been rescued."

This time she had not been rescued. It was her housekeeper, Mrs. Eunice Murray, who first sensed that something was wrong. The light in Marilyn's bedroom was still burning at three that morning. She knocked. There was no answer. She tried the door. It was locked.

She called Marilyn's psychiatrist, Dr. Ralph Greenson. He hurried over and broke in the window. When he found her, she was dead. The telephone was still buzzing in her hand.

Now it is a year later. Mrs. Murray has disappeared, she'd vanished shortly after Marilyn's death. Pat Newcombe, Marilyn's publicity agent, has left the Hollywood scene and is now working in Washington, D.C. Joe DiMaggio, her second husband, has remained faithful to her memory—he has a small bouquet of roses placed on her crypt every week.

But he is not the only one who is faithful to Marilyn today. There is still the man. The man who killed Marilyn. He is the man they can never arrest. He is the man who is still at-large.

He is the man who is living the death she so quickly found.

We have lost her, but so has he. Wherever he goes, whatever he touches, whomever he sees; he thinks of Marilyn. His guilt never leaves him, his fear has become his friend. For once, long ago, before all this, he was an honorable man. But he had made a fatal mistake. And now he is lost—not to all the world—but to himself.

Some people know who he is. Will they ever reveal it publicly? Does his wife know? Would she tell? And he himself, will his guilt pry his tongue loose?

You can see him in a crowd. You can reach out and touch him. . . . And you will never know that he is the man who killed Marilyn Monroe.

NORMAN MAILER INFORMATION CONCERNING

To advise of speculation concerning FBI complicity in the death of Marilyn Monroe propounded by author Norman Mailer in his soon-to-be-published biography of the deceased actress.

"Marilyn," a 270-page biography (New York; Grosset and Dunlap,) priced at $19.95, is scheduled for publication on 8/1/73. It reportedly has a first American printing of 285,000 copies and is the August selection of the Book-of-the-Month Club.

Following Miss Monroe's death by drug overdose in 1962, there was a spate of rumors, originating on the West Coast, alleging she was having an affair with the then Attorney General Robert F. Kennedy, and that her death was in some way related to this and/or was the result of a plot revolving around some of her associates who allegedly had past Communist Party affiliations or sympathies. These rumors were embellished upon at that time in various sensational-type gossip magazines and in a short book published in July, 1964, entitled "The Strange Death of Marilyn Monroe" by Frank A. Capell. These allegations were branded false and no factual support existed for them.

Mailer, in his new book, has repeated some of these same rumors and has given them a bizarre twist.

As to whether Miss Monroe took her own life, Mailer answers "possibly" - and then suggests other possibilities. One of these is the suggestion that the FBI, CIA or the Mafia found it of interest that Robert Kennedy, brother of the President John Kennedy, was reputed to be having an affair with the movie star. Mailer suggests that "right-wing" FBI and CIA Agents had a "huge motivation" to murder Marilyn Monroe in order to embarrass the Kennedy family, claiming the FBI and CIA were furious with the Kennedys because following the Bay of Pigs invasion President Kennedy was moving to limit the power of these agencies.

Re: Norman Maller

Maller has admitted in recent press interviews concerning his book that he has no evidence to support his theory and that it is based on his "writer's instinct" and on speculation.

A second allegation purportedly contained in the book was recently brought to the attention of the Los Angeles Office by Lloyd Shearer, editor of Parade Magazine. This allegation is that in 1962 FBI Agents in Los Angeles went to the telephone company in Santa Monica, California, and removed a "paper tape" of Marilyn Monroe's telephone calls, some of which according to Maller, were presumably to the White House or White House staff on the night of her death.

This is false and neither the files of the Los Angeles Office nor FBI Headquarters indicate the existence of any such tapes. This again appears to be a variation of a spurious charge contained in Capell's 1964 book in which he alleged that such tapes were in the custody of the Los Angeles Police Department.

Norman Maller is an eccentric but well-known author, who in the past has won a Pulitzer Prize and a National Book Award. He is the author of "The Naked and the Dead," "The Deer Park," "An American Dream," "Cannibals and Christians," "The Armies of the Night," and "Miami and the Siege of Chicago."

Memorandum to Mr. E. S. Miller
Re: Norman Mailer

A review in Time Magazine on 7/16/73, a Mike Wallace television interview, a 7/22/73 New York Times book review by Pauline Kael, and a Washington Post article dated 7/20/73 by Stephen Isaacs, are all critical of Mailer for his unsubstantiated theorizing and for engaging in "yellow" journalism.

ACTION:

For information only. No action is recommended regarding Mailer's allegations. Any public statements by the FBI would merely serve to feed the fires of publicity which Mailer is attempting to stoke.

Re Buffalo let to Director dated 2/11/56.

The Bureau furnished the NYO an article concerning MARILYN MONROE appearing in "The Washington Post" of 4/15/56 in its magazine section, "Parade."

This article, written by LLOYD SHEARER, "Parade" West Coast Correspondent, indicated that the Marilyn Monroe Productions was formed, with MARILYN MONROE, President and MILTON GREENE, Vice-President and Treasurer.

The article further indicated that GREENE was a photographer for "Look" magazine, 34 years old, is married to AMY GREENE and spends considerable time in Hollywood and NY. According to the article MARILYN MONROE came to NY in 1955 and moved in with the GREENES. She appeared on the EDWARD R. MURROW program "Person to Person" from the home of the GREENES, in Westport, Connecticut.

[redacted] called the office 7/5/73, with the following information. [redacted] stated that [redacted] had a call from LLOYD SHEARER, editor of "Parade" Magazine. SHEARER wanted to know if [redacted] was, in fact, [redacted] in 1962. [redacted] told him [redacted]. SHEARER then stated that NORMAN MAILER has written a book on the life of MARILYN MONROE which is going to carry a price list of $20.00 per copy and hopefully, be on the Book-of-The-Month within a few months. There is an allegation in the book to the effect that in 1962, FBI Agents in Los Angeles went to the telephone company in Santa Monica, California, and removed a "paper tape" of MARILYN's calls, some of which were presumably calls to the White House or White House Staff on the night of her death. Mr. SHEARER said there was some further suggestion that the FBI was either providing her some protection or providing the White House Staff with some protection.

SHEARER asked [redacted] if [redacted] knew anything about this and [redacted] told SHEARER that [redacted] had absolutely no recollection of any such events. SHEARER asked if [redacted] should not have known about this if [redacted] and [redacted] reiterated that [redacted] should have known about such activity but that [redacted] had no recollection of any such events.

[redacted] stated that SHEARER did not press the issue further and [redacted] does not know how far SHEARER intends to carry his inquiry but [redacted] wanted this office and the Bureau to know of SHEARER's inquiry and of this reference to the FBI in the forthcoming book if it had not already been brought to the Bureau's attention.

A number of individuals in the Los Angeles Office recall hearing stories and gossip outside the Bureau at the time of MARILYN MONROE's death to the effect that she had made some calls to BOBBY KENNEDY shortly before her death, but that discreet inquiry in this office and a review of our indices revealed no confirming facts and certainly no indication of any Bureau involvement as [redacted]

The search for information in response to your request was limited to those records in our central records system which are maintained at FBI Headquarters, Washington, D. C. In certain specific instances, information collected in our field office files is not forwarded to FBI Headquarters. These instances include cases in which the perpetrators of the violation were not developed during the investigation; cases in which the United States Attorney declined prosecution; and cases in which the investigation revealed the allegations were unsubstantiated or not within the investigative jurisdiction of the FBI. Therefore, if you believe records which may be responsive to your inquiry are located within the files of an FBI field office and were never reported to Headquarters, you may write directly to any field office for those materials. If you direct a request to any field office, please indicate in your letter that FBI Headquarters in Washington, D. C., has processed your initial FOIPA request.

Your request for information has been considered in light of the provisions of both the Freedom of Information Act (FOIA) (Title 5, United States Code, Section 552) and the Privacy Act (PA) of 1974 (Title 5, United States Code, Section 552a). It has been determined by the Attorney General that requests by individuals seeking information about themselves are governed by the Privacy Act. In addition, as a matter of administrative discretion, any documents which were found to be exempt from disclosure under the Privacy Act were also processed under the provisions of the FOIA. Through these procedures, you have received the greatest degree of access authorized by both laws.

It has recently become a policy of this Bureau that in responding to FOIPA requests wherein the documents to be released total less than 250 pages, no duplication fee is levied. Therefore, the enclosed documents are being forwarded to you at no charge.

If you so desire, you may appeal to the Associate Attorney General from any denial contained herein. Appeals should be directed in writing to the Associate Attorney General (Attention: Office of Privacy and Information Appeals), United States Department of Justice, Washington, D. C. 20530, within thirty days from receipt of this letter. The envelope and the letter should be clearly marked "Freedom of Information Appeal" or "Information Appeal." Please cite the FOIPA number assigned to your request so that it may be easily identified.

WINCHELL SAID:

"Washington Post: The U.S. Internal Security Committee has subpoenaed a large group of Americans working for Tass News. This agency feeds news to Russia. They appear this week in executive session. One is an American-born girl from Washington, D. C."

COMMENT:

We were informed previously of intention of Senate Internal Security Subcommittee to subpoena a number of U. S. citizens who have been employed by Tass. The American-born girl from Washington, D. C., apparently is [redacted] former Washington correspondent for Tass, who was released by Tass in July, 1955, when Tass dispensed with services of American employees. Following her release, we considered interviewing [redacted] but decided not to do so. At that time we knew Senate Subcommittee was interested in interviewing her. On 2/6/56, we received information to the effect [redacted] has been subpoenaed.

WINCHELL SAID:

"New York Daily Mirror: Harvey Matusow - he worked both sides of the fence - goes to trial in Federal Court, New York, on the 20th."

COMMENT:

Matusow's trial on perjury indictment in Southern District of New York is scheduled for 2/20/56, but the U.S. Attorney expects it will actually go to trial within one or two weeks after that date.

WINCHELL SAID:

N.Y. "New York City: A political scandal, ladies and gentlemen, that received puny attention in the New York papers was the Paul Hughes case. Hughes was acquitted of perjury. The New York World Telegram-Sun was one of the very few newspapers to feature the verdict on the editorial page as well as its opinion. The following slap in the face is from that exciting editorial: "Regardless of the verdict, the Hughes case uncovered for the public a shabby plot to smear Senator Joseph M.C. McCarthy. Whether one likes Senator McCarthy or not, the effort to use bogus, derogatory information against him merits only contempt. Another sequel to the Hughes trial must be the flushed faces in the ADA" (that's the Americans for Democratic Action) which, says the World Telegram-Sun editorial, has made so much righteous to-do about the use of paid informers."

COMMENT:

For your information. Hughes was acquitted on 2/3/56 of perjury. He had been charged with lying to a grand jury investigating Harvey Matusow.

WINCHELL SAID:

"Broadway: And the fact that America's best known blonde moving picture star is now the darling of the left-wing intelligentsia, several of whom are listed as red frontiers. I do not think she realizes it."

COMMENT:

N.Y. This possibly refers to Marilyn Monroe. A recent news article concerning the divorce action between Arthur Asher Miller, prominent author, and his wife, reflected it was rumored Marilyn Monroe was linked romantically with Miller. On interview by newsmen both of them admitted friendship but denied any romantic ties. Miller is the author of "Death of a Salesman".

We have not conducted security investigation concerning Marilyn Monroe.

WINCHELL SAID:

Washington: Two very prominent musical comedy authors on Broadway, formerly married to each other, have been positively identified as Communist Party members in secret testimony. They will be subpoenaed by a Congressional committee next Tuesday.

COMMENT:

On the basis of limited identifying data, check at Seat of Government and at New York Office has failed to identify individuals referred to above. Discreet inquiries are continuing in effort to identify these individuals. At this time we have no knowledge of committee hearings scheduled for Tuesday to interrogate such individuals.

Paris - French Government suffered another badly depleted division of reserves in Algeria. Washington and London now fear a general war in North Africa by autumn.

WHEELER SAID:

Washington - Dr. J. B. Matthews, former staff director of the McCarthy Senate Committee will take the stand July 10. The star government witness for HCUA investigating recent report by Fund for the Republic which alleges many people are blacklisted in radio and TV. Fred Woltmann, a Pulitzer prize-winning newspaperman of the Scripps-Howard paper made the following serious indictment of that fund report. Said Mr. Woltmann "In documenting case histories of alleged blacklisted victims the report repeatedly suppressed their full communist record."

COMMENT:

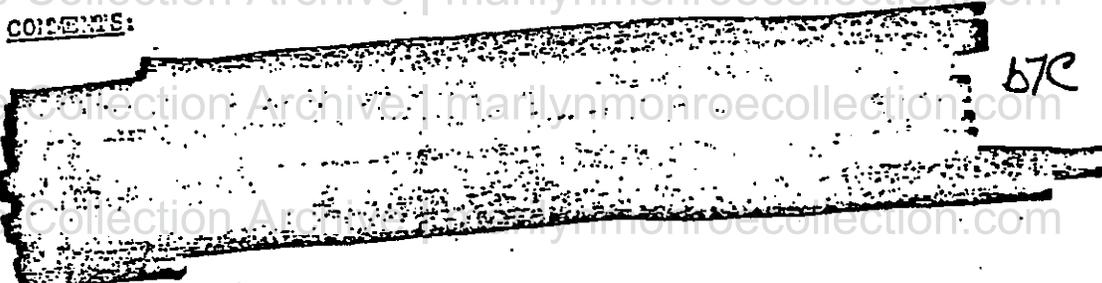

WHEELER SAID:

W. W. discussed Arthur Miller and the Congressional Investigation Committee. W. W. said some people are confused. They confuse Marx and Lenin with Rome and Juliet. W. W. states that the Government is not trying to interfere with the romance of Miller and Monroe. Some papers give that impression. W. W. testified that he once supported Red front outfits, but he refused to name comrades to that committee who attended meetings with him. Mr. Miller said he could not name them on the grounds of conscience. W. W. reviews Communist Party as criminal conspiracy and the effect Smith Act has on Communist Party. Mr. Miller testified that he stopped all Red front activity ten years ago. Before I go into next, I want to add that Mr. Miller's conscience did not stop him from following communists or having Joseph Rauh, Jr., as his lawyer. Mr. Rauh reportedly paid $8,000 to a fellow named Paul Hughes as an informer whose stuff just did not stand up before a United States Senator. Anyway Miller testified he stopped all Red front activity 10 years ago. I am now in possession of a pamphlet which shows Arthur Miller was either mistaken or perhaps his name was misused or that he lied under oath. This pamphlet names Miller as sponsor of the Citizens Emergency Defense Conference to "Defend the Smith Act Victims." The Smith Act is the only law to jail convicted Reds. Mr. Miller testified he quit all Red fronts 10 years ago. This pamphlet shows that Miller was sponsor of this pro-Red conference in New York City March 16, 1952, or 4 years ago.

Memorandum for Mr. Boardman

COMMENTS:

WICHELL SAID:
